COMMENT OF THE DAY

Reds At Variance

THE current manoeuvres of the Communist parties of Western Europe provide a fascinating study. They follow on the "agonising reappraisal" necessitated by the Khrushchev attack on the memory and reputation of Stalin. That has left deep scars. But the Russian leaders and their Western colleagues seem to have reached agreement on a formula which they hope will serve its purpose. It is contained in a resolution of the British Party which declared that "as the Communist Party of the Soviet Union continues the work of Marxist analysis of all the important questions involved in re-assessing questions involved in the past period... further light will be thrown on some issues which are still not fully clarified." The comrades must content themselves with that.

There are, however, other issues troubling the relations between Russian Communist Party and their Western counterparts. Moscow, it is clear, has decreed that the current strategy must be the intermittently familiar one of the "United Front." There is, once more, to be an attempt to persuade the Socialist Parties to co-operate with the Communists under the slogan of "working-class unity."

THAT in itself presents no difficulties. The West European Communist parties have always been willing to co-operate with Social Democrats—or even with "bourgeois" parties—when that suited the purpose of the Soviet government; equally willing, at a word from Moscow, to attack them as the worst of counter-revolutionaries.

One after another the leaders of the chief Western Communist parties have been called to Moscow for "consultations" on the new line which they were to take. But it is evident from the sequel that they all made one point. If there was to be the slightest chance of success for their attempts to form united fronts, they must appear to be "national parties, deciding their own policies."

Thus the British, French and Italian parties have begun to lay stress on their national character—probably at the behest, certainly with the consent, of Khrushchev. The unanimity is too complete to be spontaneous. Such disciplined operations have been familiar since the birth of the Communist International and of its member Communist parties. Though the Comintern has disappeared, the discipline remains.

THIS time, however, there is trouble. These declarations of independence have been arranged, but they have been suspiciously enthusiastic. There are signs that the Western Communists themselves are taking them seriously—even though nobody else may.

One effect is that Moscow has taken alarm, with the result Pravda has issued a sharp warning to the comrades in unmistakable terms. The paper declares: "One must remember that among people who are insufficiently mature politically and excessively credulous, there may be some who would fall for the spurious talk about national Communism, and for the contention that international links between Communist parties have become superfluous. Only hopeless blunders who cannot see the wood for the trees can possibly forget their international proletarian solidarity."

The position is thus created that the Western Communist parties are stressing the national character of their Communism. The Soviet Communist Party, through its official organ, denounces such talk as "spurious." It may mark the beginning of a far more difficult inter-party situation than that caused by the attack on Stalin.

HK SOCCER TEAMS BAN

SINGAPORE PAPER REPORTS MALAYA ACTION 'IT MAY BE TRUE'

The Football Association of Malaya has barred Hongkong teams from touring the Federation, according to reports in "The Straits Times" today. An official of the Hongkong Football Association said this morning he had heard nothing officially of a ban but there may be some truth in the report.

He said: "The South China and Eastern teams recently applied to the Football Association of Hongkong and Malaya for permission to visit Malaya, but so far we have received no reply from the Football Association of Malaya, so there may be some truth in the rumour. We should be very interested to get confirmation of this ban in writing so that it can be put before the committee for their comments."

The Sports Editor of the Singapore paper claims that the

MACMILLAN SPRINGS A SURPRISE

London, July 24. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Harold Macmillan, today held a surprise conference at the Treasury on Britain's financial situation with some 30 leading bankers and financiers. The Chancellor was believed to have appealed to the bankers to cut down still further on bank credit.

It was the first time on record that such a meeting had been held at the Treasury. In addition to the heads of Britain's banks, representatives of foreign banks, with branches in Britain, including American banks, were present.—France-Press.

Tattooed Man Wants Protection

Singapore, July 24. A secret society member today asked Singapore detectives for a note to protect him from arrest. The man, claiming he was now "respectable," said he could not get rid of the symbols tattooed on him when he was a member of the illegal mobs. For three days, he said, he had visited tattoo shops but found gangsters queuing up waiting to get their marks erased.

They were frightened of "Operation Dagger" the Singapore police dragnet whose aim is to stamp out the gangs. Police then raided tattoo shop and arrested ten society suspects.—Reuter.

Ghost Village To Be Restored

Singapore, July 24. The shuttered ghost village of Tras in central Malaya, cleared five years ago when authorities said it helped the murderers of the High Commissioner, Sir Henry Gurney, will soon live again.

The State War Executive today told 200 former villagers of plans to let them go back when the village is again fit for habitation.

More than 800 villagers living in the neighbouring town of Sempalit have asked to go back to their old homes.—Reuter.

Frenchman Shot

Alders, July 24. Rebel gunmen shot and killed a French soldier in the centre of Algiers today in the third of a series of attacks in the city.

The soldier was a member of an Army unit passing down a boulevard when gunmen opened up from behind a wall with automatic pistols. They eluded pursuit in a black car. Yesterday rebels used sub-machineguns to an attack on an Army truck at the gates of the city. They killed two Frenchmen and wounded three.—United Press.

Senate Cuts New Arms Aid To Yugoslavia

Washington, July 24. The Senate today decided that none of the new foreign aid fund just voted could be spent on military aid to Yugoslavia though planes and other arms now in the "pipeline" could go through.

The Senate which today voted $4,110,820,000 in foreign aid funds, had earlier rejected two attempts by Senator William Knowland, the Republican leader of California, to end all military aid to Yugoslavia.

He then introduced a new amendment which would permit shipments of some $100 million worth of planes and other arms now in the "pipeline" to go to Yugoslavia but would deny the use of any of the new money in the present bill for providing arms.

The amendment was approved by 50 to 42 on a roll-call vote. President Eisenhower had sent a personal message to the Senate today urging the rejection of Senator Knowland's earlier amendment.—Reuter.

Russian Aid For Aswan Dam Unlikely

London, July 24. Russia intends to stay out of Egypt's Aswan Dam project if the West does likewise, Soviet diplomats said today.

But Moscow believes the Anglo-American decision not to finance construction was designed to extract political conditions from the Cairo Government to ensure a Western hold on it.

These considerations are believed to be behind the cryptic remarks of the Soviet Foreign Minister, Mr. Dmitri Sholov, who said Russia did not consider the Aswan Dam an "acute problem." The Soviet diplomats made it clear that Russia did not plan to rush into the project and would prefer to keep out of it altogether—"if possible."

They feel it is too gigantic, too costly, and would have to be spread over too long a period. Russia's assistance projects so far have been on a comparatively small scale.—United Press.

Flood Death Toll

Toheran, July 24. About 250 deaths and over $14,000,000 of damages have resulted from the floods which ravaged the Iranian central plateau for four days, it was reported today.—France-Press.

FORTNIGHT'S FLOOD-LIFT SAVED 2,000 SHEEP And Their Fleece Worth £10,000

A one-man rescue operation has saved 2,000 sheep coated with £10,000 worth of wool from a watery grave.

Carnegie Hall To Be Sold

New York, July 24. Carnegie Hall, one of the United States' most famous musical landmarks, is being sold to a corporation headed by Mr. Louis Glickman, it was announced today.

The hall built in 1891, may be turned into a hotel or office building.

A REBUFF STASSEN MAN OPTS FOR NIXON

Washington, July 24. It was announced today that the Governor of Massachusetts, Mr. Christian Herter, would nominate Mr. Richard Nixon as President Eisenhower's running mate.

Yesterday Mr. Harold Stassen, the Presidential adviser on disarmament, announced he would campaign to have Mr. Nixon dropped as Vice Presidential candidate and replaced by Mr. Herter.

The Republican National Chairman, Mr. Leonard Hall, announced that Mr. Herter would nominate Mr. Nixon at the Republican convention in August.

He said Mr. Herter telephoned him this morning that he would consider it a "privilege" to put the Vice-President's name in the nomination.

Mr. Hall added that Mr. Herter and Mr. Nixon discussed the matter today and Mr. Nixon authorized him to say he was "very pleased" at the development.

'Yes, I Knew'

Mr. Stassen, who touched off a furor in the Republican Party by his move to "dump Nixon" in favour of Mr. Herter, said he knew Mr. Hall asked Mr. Herter a week ago to nominate the Vice-President.

Mr. Stassen said he hoped Mr. Nixon would be equally willing to nominate Mr. Herter if a "reappraisal" of the political situation showed that the Massachusetts Governor would be a "stronger" candidate, as Mr. Stassen claims he would be.

"I understand they have talked to each other along that line," Mr. Stassen told reporters.

Mr. Nixon said he had talked with Mr. Herter by telephone but he knew nothing of any "mutual" agreement as referred to by Mr. Stassen.

He said the conversation was "conducted for the purpose of having (Mr. Herter) nominate me. I said I'd be delighted and honoured if he would be willing to do so."—United Press.

HERTER'S LIFE THREATENED

Boston, July 24. The office of Mr. Christian Herter said today a telephone threat had been made against his life.

An extra state police guard was assigned to the executive suite.

The threat came less than 24 hours after the Presidential aide Mr. Harold Stassen moved to oust Vice-President Richard Nixon as President Eisenhower's running mate in favour of Mr. Herter.—United Press.

Ban H-Bomb Plea By Adenauer

New York, July 24. The West German Chancellor, Dr. Konrad Adenauer, said in an interview published here today that all the powers should strive to abolish nuclear weapons, under controls.

After that, the reduction in conventional weapons considered necessary would follow entirely of itself, he added in the interview with Newsweek magazine.

In the interview he was asked his views on the suggested reduction in Nato forces. He replied: "You must add to this question the concurrent proposal to increase strength in nuclear weapons. This fills me with much concern... if the main weight in future is placed on nuclear weapons, a tremendous danger will be involved—that their use will immediately provoke a world war."

Dr. Adenauer said his Government was preparing a note on German reunification to be sent to the Big Four powers.

"Whether this will result in new discussions remains to be seen," he added. "But I believe the question of reunification is so closely connected to that of disarmament that one cannot expect it to be resolved first, but concomitant to disarmament."—Reuter.

Lusaka, July 24. A territory-wide strike of African bus drivers left hundreds of children stranded on the way to school today on one of the coldest days of the winter.

But within an hour Europeans had turned out to man the buses. The drivers struck over what they felt was the wrongful dismissal of a member of their union.—United Press.

Eden Meets Red MPs

London, July 24. Sir Anthony Eden, the Prime Minister, this afternoon received members of the Soviet Parliamentary delegation.—Reuter.

UNION BID TO SPREAD CAR STRIKE

Birmingham, July 24. Union leaders today ordered dockers, mechanics, lorry drivers, and barges to support a strike of more than 20,000 car workers which threatens to close down the giant British Motor Corporation.

The unions took this step during a day of mounting tension in which strike pickets fought to prevent non-strikers entering the factories and to stop goods leaving. Police intervened several times.

As the strike spread export cars began to pile up at the docks throughout England. Most dockers at Liverpool, London, Southampton, Bristol and several of the smaller northern ports refused to handle Austin and Morris cars and spare parts from the Corporation's factories.

Workers in hundreds of car firms were also ordered by the 950,000-member Amalgamated Engineering Union to stop work on all accessories for the Corporation.

Mr. Bob Openshaw, Union President, said he was confident that all Corporation production lines would be at a standstill by the week's end.

"The strike is strengthening in spite of reports of men drifting in to work," he said. "It will be so complete within a few days that it won't be any use anybody trying to work in any case."

As the strike enveloped ports and allied trades, Sir Anthony Eden's Cabinet received a report on the situation from Mr. Ian Macleod, Labour Minister. Mr. Harold Watkinson, Transport Minister, was also called to the meeting.

The Corporation claimed today that more than 23,000 of its 43,000 workers—1,000 more than yesterday—reported for work at their factories.

Leaders of 15 unions, who called the strike in protest against the dismissal of 6,000 redundant workers disputed the figures. One strike official claimed that hundreds of men who went to work this morning had since joined in the stoppage. The Ford Company, subsidiary of the American firm, was also involved in the dispute.

About 4,000 Ford employees at Dagenham, Essex, were given dismissal notices effective from Thursday because one of the BMC factories affected by the strike supplies it with the under-bodies of its Consul, Zephyr and Zodiac models.

Ford workers protested against the sackings by stopping work for an hour today.

Tomorrow, leaders of the unions involved in the BMC strike meet in Birmingham to decide how to make the stoppage solid. For though the strike is hampering exports and Allied trades it is seen in some quarters as a defeat for the unions who have failed to bring out the Corporation's entire staff.—Reuter.

French commentators and newspapers of all shades had predicted a likely defeat for Premier Guy Mollet's Cabinet if the Socialist veterans continued to insist on higher income tax.

NO INCREASE IN TAXATION

Paris, July 24. The Finance Minister, M. Paul Ramadier, gave in to his critics to save the Government today and agreed to finance the Algerian campaign with a patriotic loan instead of higher income taxes.

Following a Government demand for a confidence vote on part of its programme, M. Ramadier agreed to drop his plans for a second ten per cent increase in income taxes this year.

French commentators and newspapers of all shades had predicted a likely defeat for Premier Guy Mollet's Cabinet if the Socialist veterans continued to insist on higher income tax.

HAMMARSKJOLD MAINTAINS: UN HAS NOT LOST GROUND IN THE MIDDLE EAST

Geneva, July 24. The United Nations "has not lost any ground" in the Middle East, Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold told a press conference here today.

Refusing to make any "preliminary or immature" detailed comment on his latest four-day "check-up" on the Israeli-Arab ceasefire, Mr. Hammarskjold said he thought that in the present delicate situation merely standing still could be regarded as a kind of success.

"We are trying to do something very unusual in political and diplomatic history," he said. "That is changing the direction of a stream."

A Mistake

He added that "there are obviously points on which things are not as I would like to have them at all. But to throw one's cards on the table simply because we have not reached perfection would be a mistake."

Mr. Hammarskjold said he had a tentative date for another "check-up" visit to the Middle East in October if the governments concerned agree at that time. Such visits, without fixed agenda, appear to be "quite useful," he remarked.

Mr. Hammarskjold also commented on a speech made earlier today in the economic and social council by British delegate Lord John Hope, who had said the British Government might have to reconsider the scale of its participation in UN activities if they continued to expand at the present rate.

Co-ordination

Mr. Hammarskjold said he too had been arguing for years on the need for more co-ordination of the far-flung projects of the world's organization and its specialized agencies and on the impossibility of doing everything everybody wanted it to do. He therefore was basically agreed with Lord Hope's speech for good economy... a solution which gets the maximum out of the money put into the machinery.

He declined to comment on Cyprus as "outside my sphere of competence," on the financing of Egypt's Aswan Dam because he was "not well enough informed on recent developments" and on China because "it is an aspect of a very acute political situation."

On China he did say, as he has said frequently before, that "in the long run, universality is a must for the United Nations," but refused to go into the question of "how universality is to be implemented in particular cases." —United Press.

Deterrent To Communist Aggression Against The Free World

Manila, July 24.

Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Chairman of the US Joint Chiefs of Staff in a speech here today reaffirmed America's determination to maintain powerful forces as a deterrent to Red aggression against the free world.

Adm. Radford presided and delivered the principal address at the commissioning of this mighty American naval base which is located in historic Bataan Province on the China Sea side of Luzon.

"This mighty base," Adm. Radford said, "is visible evidence that an enemy who wants to invade the Philippines will have to fight his way over the sea and through the air before he touches Philippine soil. We are backing the treaties between us not merely with words, but with millions of dollars worth of construction and equipment and with thousands of Americans dedicated to liberty and freedom."

Regional Security

Adm. Radford said this base "is part of a comprehensive system of regional security in the Pacific area."

He said, "It is part of the Philippines and the Philippine Republic is a vital part of SEATO."

"Today," he added, "we dedicate Cubi Point to the defence of the Philippines and the free world. It now becomes a major addition to the means whereby free nations extend air power in defence of peace."

Adm. Radford warned against the "danger that stems from the Sino-Soviet bloc and international communists."

He praised the Southeast Asia Treaty of eight nations, describing it as "a milestone in the furtherance of human liberty and self-government in the Pacific area."

Mutual Defence

"I have long been convinced of the necessity for mutual defence programmes and military co-operation in order to preserve national independence and cultural traditions," said Adm. Radford. "Insofar as the US is concerned its responsibilities are vast and so far-flung that we believe we serve freedom best by developing the deterrent of our mobile striking power plus strategically placed reserves."

FIGHT OVER ELEPHANT

Bangui, July 24. A case of elephant poaching today provoked a mild "frontier incident" between African villagers and a Belgian planter in Oubangui Char, French Equatorial Africa, on the French side of the Oubangui River.

Despite the strict hunting regulations in the Belgian Congo, a group of Africans from the French side killed an elephant on Belgian territory and brought the meat back to be smoked.

The owner of the concession where the elephant was killed, a Belgian planter living on the French side of the river, pursued the hunters and demanded back the meat and the tusks.

The heated discussion between the villagers and the planter turned into a scuffle, in which the planter was slightly wounded on the forehead. The villagers also confiscated his rifle.

Both sides are bringing suit. —France-Press.

Comet Services Announced

Washington, July 24. Mr. J. H. Carmichael, Chairman of the United States Capital Airlines Company, said tonight that the company's new British Comet IV jet airliners would be put into service in the New York-Chicago and Washington-Chicago routes.

He added that the 14 airliners, each capable of seating 68 persons, would be delivered by their makers, the British de Havilland Company, after January 1, 1958.

The airlines' £19,000,000 deal was announced in London earlier today. —France-Press.

ADM RADFORD

"Our deterrent power can help protect many as well as one. Therefore we maintain at all times powerful forces in the western Pacific as a deterrent to the use of open violence."

Adm. Radford said that at the moment "the Communists are placing increased emphasis on political and economic infiltration." But he said he could see "no convincing evidence that this shift in tactics represents any intent to abandon their efforts to subvert, weaken and overthrow the political, economic and social systems of free nations."

Aggressive

"What I see is an aggressive Communist bloc stretching from the Baltic to the South China Sea," Adm. Radford said. "This

STUDENT LOSES HIS NOTES

The Hague, July 24. A Pakistani student, studying in the Netherlands on a scholarship, today despaired of obtaining his degree at Delft Higher Technical School after he had lost a briefcase containing irreplaceable lecture notes and laboratory test results.

The student, 32-year-old Mohammed Jaberuddin, said that a whole year's work had gone with the briefcase and he would not be able to cover the ground ever again in time to write his degree thesis.

He said that if the person who found his briefcase did not return it to him, he would have to return to Pakistan without his degree. —France-Press.

Turkey Releases Syrians

Ankara, July 24. Twenty-nine Syrians, who had been arrested for smuggling, were released today, the Turkish Foreign Ministry, announced tonight.

The Syrians, who had been accused of smuggling near the Turkish town of Nusaybin, on the Syrian-Turkish border, were among 30 who were originally arrested on June 23 after two Turkish soldiers and a Turkish officer had been killed in a clash with smugglers.

The seven other Syrians had been released previously. —France-Press.

ALLEGED RAPE Two Soldiers Detained

Munich, July 24. The US Army today identified two American soldiers held on charges of raping a 21-year-old German woman in Weiden last Sunday.

Officials said Specialist Third Class Charles B. Austin, and Private Dennis Morris were "being held in connection with an alleged rape."

Both men are members of headquarters battery of the Seventh Corps Artillery.

According to the woman, the two soldiers dragged both her and her 18-year-old escort with a "blind instrument," then raped her. The men were arrested by German police after the escort ran for help.

Both Germans identified the soldiers, US officials said. —United Press.

Menzies Warns Of New Soviet Foreign Policy

COMMONWEALTH & AMERICA SHOULD MOVE WITH CAUTION

New York, July 24.

The Australian Prime Minister, Mr Robert Menzies, warned today that the United States and the British Commonwealth nations should "move with the utmost caution" in the face of the "new look" in Soviet foreign policy.

NIGERIAN DISPUTE INQUIRY

London, July 24.

Mr Alan Lennox-Boyd, the Colonial Secretary, announced today he had decided to appoint a commission of inquiry to investigate a dispute over the relationship between the Premier of Eastern Nigeria, Dr Nnamdi Azikiwe, and the African Continental Bank limited in Nigeria.

A crisis in Eastern Nigeria has arisen over investment of Government funds in the African Continental Bank, of which Dr Azikiwe is a founder. Dr Lennox-Boyd has accused the Colonial Office of supporting the Government. Sir Clement Plims, to protect a British banking monopoly.

He has threatened to resign because he was "not prepared to take dictation" from the Governor or the Colonial Secretary.

SOME DELAY

Mr Lennox-Boyd told the House of Commons the inquiry would mean some delay in convening a constitutional conference at which self-government for the regions of Nigeria would be discussed.

The conference was due to meet in London in September. Sir Stafford Foster, 57, Chief Justice of the Federation of Nigeria, will be chairman of the inquiry.

He has been Attorney General in Cyprus, Kenya and Malaya and is a former Chief Justice of the Federation of Malaya. —China Mail Special.

QUICK JOBS NEEDED IN CEYLON

Colombo, July 24.

The annual research session of the Indian Central Board of Irrigation and Power was opened here today by Ceylon Premier, Solomon Bandaranaike.

The research session, which is being held for the first time in Ceylon, was attended by the Indian Government and the Ceylon Government. It was inaugurated by the Ceylon Premier, Solomon Bandaranaike.

Referring to the division of Germany into two parts, he said: "You cannot divide a nation into two and expect that you have made a settlement that will stand the wind and wars of history."

Witty And Wise

But he forecast that "East Germany is likely to stay in Communist hands" for an indefinite time.

Mr Menzies' address at the University Club was called "witty" and "wise" by various guests.

About 100 leading business, banking, industrial and publishing figures attended the luncheon.

Mr Floyd Blain, President of the Australian Australian Association, introduced Mr Menzies by saying: "If President Eisenhower were unavailable, who would the nations of the world and the Commonwealth turn to? Who could they better turn to than Prime Minister Menzies? Now that Mr Churchill has retired, there is no one in whom we would have greater confidence."

Returning

The introduction was roundly applauded and seconded with cries of "hear, hear," but Mr Menzies responded: "I'm sure you meant it all, but I don't agree with a word of it."

Buddha Statue May Be In Japan

Calcutta, July 24.

The only image of Gautama Buddha to have been sculptured from life might be somewhere in Japan, Mr O. C. Ganguly, a leading Indian art expert, said here today.

The image was made of sandalwood by the court sculptor of King Prosenjit, a Hindu ruler whose Empire had its capital on the site of the modern city of Benares.

The statue was made for the King when Buddha, who had been staying at his court, left to visit his mother. The image was later sent with Buddhist missionaries across the Himalayas to Central Asia, from where it was taken across China to Korea and finally to Japan, Ganguly believes.

The evidence for its existence is contained in the writings of two Chinese travellers, Hsueh Tzang and Fa Hien. Ganguly suggested that a team of Indian scholars search Japan for the image. —France Press.

He added that M. Pineau was going to London because frequent contact between the British and French governments on international affairs was very important at the present time and because Sir Anthony Eden, the British Prime Minister, could not come to Paris until September next.

It seemed probable, according to usually well-informed sources, that M. Pineau would tell his British colleague that the French Government was very satisfied with the more stringent attitude towards Egypt adopted by Washington and London as expressed recently in the refusal of the two Anglo-Saxon governments to finance the Aswan Dam.

Satisfaction

Considerable satisfaction was expressed in French diplomatic circles over the speech made yesterday by the British Prime Minister. It was pointed out here that Sir Anthony Eden's analysis of Soviet policy at the present time corresponded to that made by French Government leaders and that there was no difference of opinion on this subject between the British and French governments.

Sir Anthony Eden's attitude on an eventual modification of the structure of the defence forces inside the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation was described here as perfectly correct.

Finally, French diplomatic sources noted with interest Sir Anthony's reference to the possibility of putting an end to nuclear experiments by general international agreement.

They said that it seemed to be the first time that Great Britain had indicated any willingness to negotiate on this point and this attitude might in turn facilitate negotiations with the Soviet Union.

Anything which promoted disarmament by general agreement was warmly welcomed by France, the sources added. —Reuter.

BRITAIN NOT TAKING NUCLEAR WEAPONS INITIATIVE YET

By STANLEY PRIDDLE

London, July 24.

Britain will probably await the next session of the United Nations Disarmament experts before taking any major initiative towards international limitation of nuclear weapon tests, it was understood in diplomatic quarters here tonight.

The five-nation sub-committee of experts comprises Britain, France, the United States, Canada and Russia. Its last discussions ended last May in failure to reach agreement. It is expected to meet again in October or November to consider new proposals made at the recent session of the United Nations Disarmament Commission in New York.

Since then Britain has declared itself ready to enter an agreement to limit atomic and hydrogen bomb tests outside the framework of a full disarmament treaty.

Complicated

Answering a number of Labour Opposition questions in the House of Commons today, Sir Anthony Eden, the Prime Minister, said: "I certainly do not preclude our taking the initiative on this matter, but it is a complicated business, which we must work out carefully for ourselves."

A City Council official said this overnight also meant that many of the tenants in Singapore's biggest building were also occupying their offices illegally.

Meanwhile nightclub queen Julie Jones, a tiny blonde from Denver, Colorado, has stopped her briefly-dressed dancing act and now sings with the band. Julie is convinced there's a lull on her in Singapore.

"First bronchitis, now this," she said today. "Anyway I go to Manila in a week." —Reuter.

Mr Selwyn Lloyd, the Foreign Secretary, later told the House that the Government had been working on possible ways of bringing about limitation, but he declined to give details.

"We hope others (nations) will do the same, and we shall seek to exchange ideas," he said.

Mr Lloyd said the fact that the United Nations sub-committee was again to discuss the limitation of tests did not mean that no work could be done until the sub-committee reconvened.

There was no indication from official quarters here tonight, however, that Britain would in fact make formal proposals to Russia and the United States.

Her fellow "atomic Powers" for regulating experimental explosions.

US Dislike

Observers here think British reluctance in inducing American thinking on the subject. The United States is believed to dislike the idea of an agreement to limit tests which is not part of a wider disarmament convention.

Troops Run Trains During Italian Railway Strike

Rome, July 24.

Troops and special railway police co-operated in running a few trains in Italy today while a strike of 190,000 railwaymen paralysed all normal services for 24 hours, from last night till midnight tonight.

Only about 150 emergency trains ran today compared to the normal daily average of 6,000. Train-drivers had orders to approach all level crossings at three miles an hour, since crossing-keepers were also on strike. In most places, police guarded the crossings.

Augmented

Military aircraft were used to reinforce civil airliners on all internal air routes and military lorries were used to augment bus services.

International expresses halted at midnight at the biggest stations near the frontiers or else did not run at all.

The strike was called jointly by Italy's three main labour federations (Communist, Christian Democrat and Social Democrat) to protest against government delays in dealing with the railwaymen's demands.

These include reduction of wages scales and establishment of a regular 45-hour week.

The Minister of Transport, Signor Armando Cossiga, announced that the strike would cost the national economy about 1,000 million lire (£275,000 sterling).

Stranded

The Minister is due to report to the Cabinet tomorrow on discussions he is holding with Italian leaders to avoid further strike action which they have threatened if the Government does not meet their demands.

Hundreds of foreign tourists were stranded on railway stations all over the country by the strike. —Reuter.

TWO WHO STOOD OUT

BRITAIN'S OLYMPIC PROSPECT

MEET BARCLAY PALMER

— THIS PARSON'S SON IS TOUGH

Says GEORGE WHITING

Poking around in search of Olympic Games hot-shots the earnest inquirer can bump into all sorts of sporting phenomena.

For instance, I have just been watching a great grandson of General Booth, the Salvation Army founder, come charging home from interviewing a bishop and start throwing 16lb. of Czechoslovakian iron at a compost heap in a parsonage garden at Bromley. He does it 200 times a day.

His name is William Barclay Livingstone Palmer. He is the 24-year-old younger son of the Rev. John, vicar of St John the Evangelist. At a handsome and splendidly proportioned 17½ stone, he looks up from 6ft. 6in. at a 7ft. brother and down at two diminutive sisters of 5ft. 5in. and 5ft. 11in.—poor little mite.

And this is the chap who, after only 18 months of serious competition, will almost certainly be putting the shot for Britain in the Olympic Games in Melbourne next November.

Can he do anything else? Brother you asked for it. Allow me to inform you that this remarkable young man has just come down from Oxford after taking a theology degree at St Peter's Hall. That at the age of five he was offering prodigious performances on the violin. That at seven, at 11, and again two years ago he was giving every indication of being physically finished. All wished up.

VIRTUOSO

That he has reached (and still can reach) virtuoso ranking at Rugby, soccer, hockey, cricket, rowing, lawn tennis, table tennis, discus, javelin, sprinting, and basketball. Also that he could earn a living as a pianist any day he likes.

From Bach to Beethoven THE LOT.

An astonishing catalogue—and if the above recital appears to be somewhat scrambled I can only plead that I have written it down in a whirlwind. Two hours with the explosive W. B. L. Palmer leaves you with a marked respect for muscular Christianity—but it also leaves you in no condition to marshal facts and present a well ordered account of the proceedings.

Our Mr Palmer barged into the drawing-room, hustled me into the vicarage garden, whipped off his Achilles single, to present a large and tawny torso to the afternoon sun and began tossing a 16lb. shot into the air like a cricket ball.

"Born Toronto, March 1932. Weak and useless," he explained. "Come to live with parents in Liverpool slums. Skinny. Chesty. Probably bronchial. Had to decide—games or violin. Picked games.

"Sprinted 100 yards in 13 seconds when I was seven. Took up soccer. Mad on bill games when I got to prep school.

"Bright boy. Also wretched little boy. Contracted abscess in the right tibia when I was 11. You know—ankle. Cripple, practically. But parents had great faith also. First civilian to be treated with penicillin. Hospital at Alton, Hants. In bed for 14 months. Operation great success. Medical miracle. I will repeat that. A miracle."

INTERRUPTION

At this stage we were interrupted by another miracle—when Barclay Palmer only just missed my unoffending foot with his cannon-ball. Taking advantage of the escape I persuaded him to keep still for five minutes while my pencil cooled off.

"At 13 I learned W.L.B.P. was towing for his house in his first year at Monkton Combe School, near Bath. Next, skipping the school at hockey, playing lock forward at Rugby, contriving Tyson-like whizz-bangs at cricket, dabbling in athletics, and getting really serious about lawn tennis.

"Won the tennis singles last week of term. Collapsed overnight. Broke school shot record with 41ft. next day. Makes me sound conceited, I ass.

"Joined the Army-REME. Commissioned in a Signal. Became really interested in athletics—discus, javelin, shot. Went up to Oxford in '52. Got a glimmering of American technique from coach, John Jeffery. Then trained under Stumpff—you know, Franz. Marvellous coach.

"John Savidge, Britain's best shot putter, announced his retirement, and I interpreted that as a personal challenge to myself to make the British team."

Barclay Palmer made it—after recovering from the kind of stomach trouble that induced his friends to advise him to quit all strenuous sports for keeps. Against Germany at the White City last year he put (put? puffed?)

the shot 51ft. in his first international.

He performed prodigiously in Moscow, Prague, Bucharest, and Bordeaux. Progressed from 44ft. to 54ft. in one season, and achieved 54ft. 2in. in the AAA Championships at the White City recently.

Barclay Palmer's ambitions? They sprout in all directions, athletically and theologically. At the moment, however, they are chiefly concerned with surpassing the 57ft. 6½in. European record of Czechoslovakian Jiri Skobla.

Next, he hopes to attain 60ft. in time for Melbourne, where our ill-considered "field" competitors will be reaching out in honest endeavour for the as yet unattained world record of 61ft. 4in. thrust by America's Parry O'Brien at Los Angeles last month.

"Come with me," commanded Barclay Palmer, in tones that will one day blister the unrighteous from a pulpit. So we belted across the garden, where this energetic young man immediately began heaving a 45lb. dumb-bell suspended on a 20ft. rope from one of the vicarage ems—like pushing a child on a swing.

MEETING

He tossed his cannon-ball in the direction of the cabbage. He did hand-springs on the lawn. Then he ordered me to mount his sister's bicycle, ride in the wrong direction down a one-way street in Bromley, pull up at the local pub, and meet the boss Harry Burns.

So I met Harry Burns—a diminutive muscle-man of astounding vigour—who expounded the purpose and potential of weight training and handed me a note explaining that a legendary Greek athlete called Milo had started it all by carrying a 150lb. bull calf about on his shoulders.

Well, where Milo left off, William Barclay Livingstone Palmer looks like beginning. When I tottered out, he was playing games with lumps of iron, and heaving a 500lb. set of dumb-bells all over the Royal Bell Hotel.

Would anyone like a nice plate of nails for breakfast?

The Champagne Toast in the Spot of Honour at the Top of the Sports Parade this week is "Tom Broadbent of 11th Infantry Workshops, REME". His magnificent performance in walking round the Island to victory in the Walkathon last Saturday makes him one of the most welcome guests we have ever had in our weekly parade.

His was a truly courageous achievement and there was a glow of pride in the hearts of the many Army folks who lined the route and particularly the last 500 yards as Broadbent strode to the winning line.

If a band had suddenly struck up his regimental march the Scotsman from Sek Koo, could not have finished the gruelling course in more majestic style, and even the most partisan of spectators could not resist joining in the cheering that greeted his triumphant arrival in Wanchai flanked on either side by a motor cyclist of the Hongkong Police Force.

When the favourites were being discussed before the race the name of Broadbent was never mentioned and in fact according to himself he didn't think very much of his own chances at that stage. Walking, particularly in long distance events, is a grueling sport even for the well trained expert. Many of the entrants in this race had never taken part in anything like it before and that includes Broadbent. This was his first experience of competitive walking over long distances and in view of the excellent time he returned, there are many who think he should now give serious consideration to making a further study of the sport for which he shows such natural aptitude.

TOUGH GOING

The Walkathon took place at what is probably the most trying part of the year and during the first four hours from 6 o'clock to 7 p.m. the sun and the high temperature sapped the strength of the competitors. Broadbent said that these early stages were the hardest and that he found it tough going until he reached Aberdeen in the late evening.

At that stage, and until Kennedy Town was reached, the struggle for the lead was intense, but once on the flat the soldier forged ahead, walking with determination and balancing his effort with a sense of judgment that belied his inexperience of this kind of competition.

It was almost impossible to believe that 41.2 strength-supplying miles lay behind him as he drove himself relentlessly to the finishing line. He was cheered every inch of the way during the last few hundred yards and finished a popular winner in the almost fantastic time of 8 hours 21 minutes 31 seconds.

Listeners to Rediffusion heard Tom's comments a few seconds after he had crossed the winning line. When asked how he felt he showed a real ability to sum things up in energy, serving fashion. "I'm thirty and tired," he said, and when asked if he would do it all again he replied "I think I would."

Well done, Tom Broadbent. Yours was a performance that brought proud satisfaction to everyone connected with Army sport.

SPECIAL COMMENDATION

A special word of commendation must however be reserved for Sgt Jones of 27 HAA Regt RA and his daughter Hazel who both finished the course. Sgt Jones is of course an experienced walker and there is little doubt that he could have finished much higher in the placings if he had decided to break the family partnership. However, he and Hazel stayed together and by good judgment, endurance, and mutual determination finished the heart-breaking course. Congratulations to both on a grand show.

The organizers of the event made very satisfactory arrangements for refreshments along the route but that doesn't prevent us saying a special word of thanks for the thoughtful and much appreciated contribution which 27 HAA Regt RA, made at Stanley. Several competitions and officials took the trouble to comment on this pleasant little gesture and I am sure the gentlemen behind the effort will take some satisfaction from the knowledge that their thoughtfulness was indeed appreciated.

The timekeeper's ball has often brought pleasure to Cfm Jack Dinning of District Workshops.

REME when it has meant the end of a hard and punishing contest. For our Colony and South East Asian Boxing Champion it was bells of a very different kind when he was married at the week-end.

Dinning has enjoyed great popularity during his time in Hongkong and his name on a boxing bill has usually been enough to pull out the crowds. He has always been a grand stylist, entertainer, and even when things have gone against him he has shown a fine sense of sportsmanship.

Army boxing fans, and in fact boxing fans in every corner of the Colony, will join with me in wishing the young couple a long and happy life together.

GREAT SUCCESS

"Since when has roller skating been the prerogative of 33 General Hospital?" asks a group of indignant Sappers in a note to me this week. It seems that in recent months a number of energetic young engineers have been regular performers on wheels and if I am to take their own assessment as accurate they are pretty hot stuff.

While the Combined Services Inter-Unit Golf Tournament continues to make good progress and there is a great battle going on for a place in the closing rounds I am surprised to hear—in an indirect sort of way—that there is no official trophy for this most important event in our summer sporting calendar.

The competition still has some weeks to run and we look forward to hearing that the organizers have obtained a suitable cup or shield for this most popular inter-unit tournament. Any donors?

Congratulations to the committee responsible for the arrangements at the Royal Army Pay Corps Annual Swimming Gala last week.

The whole show was a great success and I think this was due in great measure to the fact that in the programme planning every effort was made to open the proceedings on an exciting note and then to keep it there. If that was the plan it was executed admirably and there wasn't a lull from start to finish.

I was delighted to see some originality in the selection of prizes for the various events. Like others I feel the time-honoured practice of handing out miniature cups and medals that are soon lost is followed too blindly and on this occasion it was refreshing to see items of practical value among the cups and trophies on the prize table. An excellent afternoon's entertainment.

Army and Colony soccer fans will remember Len "Tiger" Casey, the brilliant and tenacious full-back who was a most successful cornerstone in the Granger City—Wells defence during the 1953-54 season.

Len, who had already played in the Amateur Cup Final at Wembley before coming to Hongkong, is now a Chelsea stalwart, and after being on the sidelines for a long time with a nasty knee injury he is looking forward to the new season with a special keenness and determination to make the top grade. The reason? Well it's the most important of all. He has just been married. Congratulations from Hongkong have already been sent to Stamford Bridge.

SOCCER PERSONALITY

And to finish this week we have another word on football. A famous football personality in Great Britain has been following the development of one of last season's Army players with great thoroughness and has now stated in writing that he intends to take a close personal interest in the player's career as soon as he returns to the UIC from Hongkong.

The player himself will be receiving the news in a few days when one of the biggest soccer names in the last 30 years says "I shall personally supervise the arrangements in order that he gets every opportunity to make the grade" . . . no young player could ask for more.

FOUR-POINT PLAN FOR BRITISH SOCCER

SIR STANLEY ROUS HITS OUT AGAIN

By ERIC NICHOLLS

You can't keep a good ideas man down. In the days when things weren't terribly rosy in Britain's soccer garden, Secretary Sir Stanley Rous, along with his fellow FA councillors, was branded as "old fashioned", devoid of ideas to lift British soccer out of the mire. In actual fact Sir Stanley is quite a guy.

Last season he shook the world in general and the Football League in particular with his revolutionary proposals for a new National League and for the cutting of dead-wood in the football forest.

These proposals received the coldest of cold shoulders. But Sir Stanley was not dismayed. Now in his forthright manner he has hit out again. (FA Year Book, Heinemann, 3/6d). This time Sir Stanley recommends in a four-point plan the reducing of League and Cup fixtures to make room for more matches against overseas teams; friendly games to replace the traditional trial matches before each season; the three Services to be asked to allow first-class players on National Service to appear regularly on Saturday afternoons for the nearest senior club to where they are stationed; and a national youth league or series of regional youth leagues to cater for youngsters not ready for first or reserve team football.

BRIGHTER FIXTURES Sir Stanley says that improved organization plus brighter and more imaginative fixtures can help to overcome some of the difficulties, but that in the long run what counts is the quality of the football. "I'm sure," he says, "that one of the reasons people flock to schoolboy and youth games is that they feel they are likely to provide play which is skilful, fresh, and attractive."

In an attack on bad temper, "old soldier" tactics, and of referees' decisions being flouted, Sir Stanley, I feel, speaks for all who have the best interests of the game at heart when he states: "Such behaviour can scarcely be too harshly deplored. Winning is important, but not if it means losing self-respect, not to mention public support."

Well spoken, Sir Stanley! FOUR-POINT PLAN The programme of League and Cup matches, at all levels, might be reduced in number, to leave at least four match days free during the season, for the playing of matches against overseas teams, or some other unusual event.

On two dates during the fortnight before the start of each season a club's first and reserve teams might be allowed to play "friendlies" against other clubs of their choice—again perhaps some of them would be overseas sides.

The times of these matches would be arranged so as not to clash with other seasonal events in the district. They would replace the present club trial matches, though a percentage of the receipts would still be allocated to deserving sporting and other charities.

The gap in training and experience caused by National Service is still a serious disadvantage. The Services authorities might be asked to consider, whenever possible giving permission to entrants who are first-class players to appear regularly on Saturday afternoons for the nearest senior club to where they happen to be stationed. A regular mid-week games afternoon in all units would also be of immense value.

A new national youth league—or better still, a series of regional youth leagues—should be formed. Some clubs are beginning to suffer from a surfeit of talented young players who are not yet ready for inclusion in the first or reserve teams. These new leagues would provide a reliable supplement to the FA Youth Challenge Cup Competition, and enable youngsters to play more competitive football with people of their own age.

HORSE RACING

Military Law May Stay Unbeaten

Says RICHARD BAERLEIN

London.

Opinions among racegoers are now sharply divided between Messmate, Military Law and Skindles Hotel as to which is the best two-year-old of the current season.

Skindles Hotel is the least inviting as a future proposition, for he is bred purely for sprinting and there is no scope for him in European racing after the end of this season.

In any case I doubt if he could cope with the other two at six furlongs. Military Law's performance when winning the National Breeders' Produce Stakes was really the most impressive of any two-year-olds seen this season.

ON THE BIT

He was on the bit the whole way and Joe Mercer appeared to be toying with the opposition at half way.

He slammed a useful colt in Gaza Time and, although he was receiving 9lb from the second, he had a bit more in hand than the three-length victory would suggest.

In his first race Military Law finished only third at Ascot to Fulfer and Crupella. Beaten a head and three-quarters of a length, and it may be asked why Fulfer is not fit to be compared with him.

Fulfer, however, was at that time a fully experienced colt, while Military Law was big and tottly backward. In view of his condition, I was quite amazed by the performance he gave to gain a place that day.

Even at Sandown the other day he appeared a long way short of his best and is likely to be an even better colt the next time he is seen on a race-course.

He is a hardy, tough colour and a most impressive individual altogether. The breeding is quite sound and there is no reason why he should not stay a mile next season in top-class company.

Court Martial, his sire, has produced no end of winners in the past few seasons but I doubt if any of his previous offspring will be equal to this magnificent colt.

I am quite prepared for Military Law to go through the rest of the season unbeaten, no matter the company in which he runs.

NO COMPARISON

To compare him with Messmate is an impossible proposition. Messmate obviously surprised his connections with his easy Ascot victory and cannot fairly be assessed until he has been out again.

The horses which finished behind him at Ascot have a very poor record to date, while those in Military Law's race have proved themselves on almost every occasion.

At present, if I could choose one of these two colts, my preference would undoubtedly be for Military Law—London Express Service.

Soccer Starts To Kick Itself Out Of The Rut

By JOHN MACADAM

After all this razzamataz of blinking into television screens at the golfers skelping a small white ball in the Open, the tennisists smacking a larger white one at Wimbledon, and the cricketers hitting a red one in the Tests, one of the calmer delights is to switch the darn thing off, and just think about football.

Despite the fact that we are in what is laughingly called high summer, there is nothing very odd about this, for most of the players will report to their clubs this week to prepare for the season that kicks off in less than a month from now—August 18, to be precise.

It is not easy to conjecture what success the Football League will have in its chase after the missing millions of spectators for, truly, the grind-of-the-mill programme between August 18 and May 1 next—apart altogether from Cup-ties and representative matches—offers soccer to the point of satiety and beyond.

The fact is that League football has got itself into a deep rut from which only a handful of such adventurers as Stanley Cullis, of Wolves, Matt Busby of Manchester United, and Leslie McDowell, of Manchester City, seem capable of rescuing it.

There will be considerable interest in Alec Stock's impact on the Second Division with Leyton Orient, and with Everton's reported innovation in training methods.

But all this hardly adds up to the real excitement in football, that an increasing number of clubs are prying for and unless there is a bolder approach to the game these millions will continue to miss.

A GREAT CHANCE

There was a great chance for the League clubs to back their Management Committee's proposal for four divisions that would have given the game the blood transfusion needed.

But the diehards would have none of it and the plan is shelved in the meantime.

When I wrote of it before last season's League "Parliament" there were high hopes for it.

Out with the Old Guard! On with the New!—that was the slogan. The reactionary elements who, year after year, vote their dead-wood sides back into the tournament, for which they have been so often proved incompetent, quietened it to a murmur.

There will always be big crowds to see our own progressive clubs and our national sides against the classy Continentals. It is not from this field that the millions are it from the field governed by the masses of un-informed dictatorial directors who can get little from their players but listless save-a-point performances.

From long experience of meeting with Soccer people, I can tell you that for every board-sporting manager with his eyes firmly fixed on the sky, there are 20 patient drones whose job is to keep the costs down and the team away from the relegation zone.

Master tacticians like those I have mentioned—like Doncaster Rovers' Peter Doherty—don't do it. Where are the younger ones to follow them with bold, constructive ideas that will put a jerk into the great game?

You have heard and seen plenty of 41-year-old Cyril Washbrook at Leeds.

Isn't there something comforting in the fact that another 40-year-old, Stanley Matthews—constantly fit, constantly training, and constantly thinking Matthews—is still No. 1 wherever he goes?

Brazil's Strong Man Of The Future

NO DESIRE TO BE A DICTATOR SAYS GEN. LOTT

By HAIG NICHOLSON

Rio de Janeiro, July 24.

Brazilians are in almost unanimous agreement that the man to watch in the future is a 59-year-old stockily-built, clean-shaven soldier—General Henrique Batista Duffles Teixeira Lott.

General Lott was almost unknown outside the Army until 1954 when the then President, Getulio Vargas, made him Minister of War, a post he still holds. Since then his power has steadily increased and he is unquestionably the strong man in the country although, as he confessed recently, he has no pretensions to being a dictator.

3 Presidents

"If I wanted to be a dictator," he declared, "I would not have let the good chance presented last November slip by." It was in November that he staged a bloodless revolution (which saw three occupants of the Presidential chair in as many days) to prevent an alleged coup aimed at preventing Senator Juscelino Kubitschek, a doctor turned politician, from being installed as President on January 31.

Only recently while in Sao Paulo, Brazil's second city, General Lott was asked about the possibility of another coup and he replied "I do not know of any."

And a statement read in Congress by Government Deputy Armando Falcão put an end to any talk of differences between the President and the General.

"On all matters referring to Government action," the statement ran, "the identity of thought of the Chief of State and his War Minister is complete. Neither will put up with any intrigue aimed at dividing them."

This, however, has not prevented General Lott from revealing that he would like to see lower political groups in Brazil which would give more decisive election results. He also wants a greater concentration on the country's social problems.

Man Of Character

Like President Kubitschek, General Lott comes from the State of Minas Gerais which is said to produce the Scotsmen of Brazil, and is the main centre of the coloured gem stone industry.

Even his opponents admit that he is a man of character and integrity and when called on to show his strength he is inclined to be firm rather than ruthless.

His luck has been, and continues to be, no easy one. Like other South American countries, the Army is closely identified with political affairs in Brazil and not long after President Kubitschek had taken over his official office at the Catele Palace, General Lott was confronted with a situation which was then thought to be explosive with potentialities.

Major Haroldo Veloso, an Air Force officer, and another fellow-officer left Rio in a "borrowed" plane and flew to the Amazon Valley and raised the banner of a revolt which they hoped would spread throughout the Armed Forces.

Petered Out

Major Veloso stated openly that the revolt was aimed at ending the "political-military oligarchy" which ruled Brazil from Rio.

The revolt petered out but it is no secret that a substantial body of officers are still in favour of the Services concentrating on their own affairs, and leaving to politicians the business of running the country.

SHOPPER-IN-CHIEF TO THE WEALTHY

Stuffed Elephants To French Lingerie

Paris, July 24.
A special shopping service run by an American in Paris has recently produced on request a life-sized stuffed elephant and an antique church altar. It is organised by Dorothy Lithby whose customers are wealthy, faithful, and accustomed to demanding unusual items in the typical American tradition of being in a hurry.

During four years of war in London Mrs Lithby worked as a voluntary canteen supervisor, and when America entered the war she joined the United States Military Attaches' office.

In 1944 after the liberation, she returned to her home in Paris, and still working with the Army, created a special office to meet the demand of senior officers for items unobtainable at the Army's Post Exchange (the army shop).

of France by an Indian Maharajah for the Prince's private zoo.

The antique church altar went to a private home in Kansas City.

Live peacocks are another frequent request, and Mrs Lithby has contact with kennels supplying all sizes and colours from toy greys to giant apriquets.

REGULAR CLIENTELE
A regular clientele who make a European trip every year or two years, usually write ahead, suggesting items that they are interested in purchasing.

Antique furniture, scones (ornamented wall brackets) and candleabra are at the moment in much demand.

One client was provided with crystal wall appliques from a special exhibition at the Louvre museum, which were arranged to be delivered to his hotel before the end of the exhibition.

Mrs Lithby states that today the American taste in furniture runs towards French provincial styles, which she feels is rather a pity as this type is so easily copied and reproduced in America.

"You cannot imitate real Louis Quinze," and this is the style that Mrs Lithby feels is the most representative of France.

All visitors, whether they are shopping for small souvenirs or important pieces of antique furniture, get to the famous "Flea Market", with its 3,000 booths, stalls and bazaars crowded into a few acres.

COLOURFUL
The atmosphere is gay and colourful, with every merchant guaranteeing every object to be over 100 years old. Prices are boosted up during the tourist season and one is expected to bargain for everything, from an ashtray to a chandelier at this giant rummage sale.

Mrs Lithby says that every tourist inevitably stocks up on famous brand names of French perfumes.

Another popular item is millinery. All women want to go home with at least one Paris hat; whether from a leading couture house or small copyist.

Fine French handwoven lingerie is less in demand during the last few years. The majority of women seemingly prefer the practicality of nylon.

Costume Jewellery, leather gloves and handbags are other "musts" on the average shopping list.

MEN EASIER
Men prove to be far easier clients than women, and make up their minds when shopping more quickly.

A well known American Ambassador, who is acquainted with the quality of French shirts, has a standing order with Mrs Lithby for six dozen shirts every year. —China Mail Special.

Colonial Development Money

London, July 24.
Mr Alan Lennox-Boyd, the Colonial Secretary, said today that the £750,000 cut in Government expenditure on colonial development and welfare would not slow down the rate of colonial development.

The effect would be to restrict demands on the Exchequer in the current financial year to not more than £17,250,000. But it was not expected this would affect individual projects, he added.

The Colonial Secretary was replying to a question by Mr Fenner Brockway, Labour. —China Mail Special.

Extradition Refused

Kampala, July 24.
A Uganda court today refused to extradite three former Sudan soldiers wanted for murder in connection with a mutiny in Southern Sudan last August.

A Kampala magistrate said there was no evidence that the accused murders had even occurred and he added that any offence at the time appeared to have had a "political character".

The magistrate, K. P. Seldanah, said he wanted "to indicate to all concerned that the view this court is likely to take of similar cases in the future." —France Press.

Oils Only
Stocks With Strength

London, July 24. Stocks dawdled indecisively today on the London Stock Exchange today with strength in oils about the only feature.

Motor shares paid little attention to the British Motors Corp. strike. The company's shares were virtually unchanged on the day, while Ford and Rolls-Royce also showed little movement.

In the oils Royal Dutch met demand and ran ahead more than 1 sterling. Shell and Burmah added about three shillings while British Petroleum improved more than one.

De Havilland was a gainer on hopes of further demand for the aircraft company's Comet transports. Tobacco shares slipped back on rumours of a lower dividend announcement in the offing.

British Government bonds were generally quiet and closed with a sprinkling of small losses. War Loan dipped about 3/16 sterling.—United Press.

Red Trade
Pacts
Unprofitable

Djakarta, July 24. Trade officials at the Foreign Ministry today pointed out that trade with the Communists had turned out "to be unprofitable to Indonesia."

In pointing out the unfavourable trade balance with six from Ceylon, Cambodia and Mexico, the trade officials said from now on the Government's new policy will be "to buy from and sell to these countries offering the most favourable conditions."

At the same time, they revealed that current trade agreements will be renewed "only if they have proven profitable to both sides."

Ministry sources disclosed that nearly all the trade agreements with Poland, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Rumania, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Egypt and Mexico have been terminated.

At present a number of foreign trade representatives in Djakarta are busy negotiating new pacts.—United Press.

NEW ASIAN NATIONS
BEING CULTIVATED

Tokyo, July 24.

A 27 per cent increase in Japanese exports last year shows that Japan is making a big come-back into the world's markets.

Businessmen, however, are not satisfied with their achievements in Southeast Asia, where they believe that Japan is lagging behind Western and Communist countries. One of the reasons for the reluctance of some Asian countries to buy from Japan is believed to be associated with their own growing nationalism.

To meet this, Japanese experts are trying to find a formula which would enable Japan's trade and investment plans to be accepted by these countries with more enthusiasm.

Memories Fading

Japanese travellers who have recently come home report that feeling towards Japan in Southeast Asian countries is changing for the better, especially since the conclusion of reparations agreements with Burma and the Philippines.

Memories of war are fading in this region, where Japanese capital and technique are said to be increasingly wanted.

Many Japanese businessmen and officials, however, warn against the danger of Japanese trade and investment plans being misunderstood by Southeast Asians as a revival of the wartime concept of the "East Asia Co-prosperity Sphere."

Mr. Tatsunosuke Tukasaki, who is known to be an advocate of a plan for joint Japanese-American investment in Southeast Asian development, has temporarily withdrawn his support from a proposal for a government-controlled overseas investment agency in Japan. "In view of unfavourable foreign reaction,"

Mr. Osamu Itagaki, International Trade Director of the Japanese Ministry of Trade, said that establishment of organisations resembling the wartime North China Development Corporation or Central China Development Corporation was "entirely out of the question."

No Strings

Mr. Tetsuo Miyeda, director of the Daiichi Bussan Trading Company, affiliated with the Mitsui interests, said: "Japanese economic proposals may easily be given a wrong interpretation in Southeast Asian countries, where nationalism is in the ascendency."

"As President Soekarno of Indonesia has declared, Southeast Asians reject foreign funds if strings are attached to them," Mr. Miyeda added.

He suggested that Japan should start by extending large long-term credits to these nations, to show that she has no other purpose than genuine economic co-operation.

West Germany is supplying them with credits repayable over as long as 15 years, while the Japanese Export-Import Bank finds difficulty under the present regulations in issuing credit repayable in more than five years.

Mr. Miyeda said that economic co-operation carried out on the basis of the credits would eventually pave the way for capital investments.

Two Forms

Mr. Takashi Murano, Deputy Research Director of the Bank of Tokyo, has proposed that Japan should make a close study of the types of nationalism which he said vary from country to country.

For instance, he said, nationalism had taken two different forms in India and Indonesia, because the latter almost entirely lacked indigenous capital while India could raise a certain amount of funds by itself.

Different approaches should be developed to deal with different types of nationalism, Mr. Murano added.

Some officials said that Japan could not act as a kind of "trust bank" for American aid funds, which she could use effectively because of her business and technical experience. But others wondered if Southeast Asians would accept such a plan, as joint Japanese-American investment funds are not favourably received in Manila.

CHICAGO GRAIN

MARKET

Chicago, July 25. Prices in grain futures closed steadily to firm on the Board of Trade today.

Although early prices showed a decline, grains rallied to gain as much as 2 cents a bushel on the day's close. Commission house buying and short covering disclosed a let-up in liquidation and hedging.

Exporters sold small amounts of corn to the United Kingdom, but the day's largest order of 4,000,000 bushels of wheat went to France. West Germany is scheduled to purchase a similar amount of wheat from the U.S. next week.

Wheat closed up 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents; soybeans up 2 1/2 to 3 cents; futures:

While Skipper Menzies Is Away The Ship Of State Runs Into Some Shoals

FROM H. KING WOOD

Sydney, July 18.

With its chief pilot Robert Gordon Menzies careering about Europe and America, the Australian ship of state has run into a number of shoals lately, and its officers have not been an exactly happy crew.

Minister for defence production Sir Eric Harrison gave the ship the wrong course, when he announced plans to retrain 157 workers at the Lithgow small arms factory.

The factory announced the dismissals because of retrenching for production of the new Belgian FN 30 rifle.

It said that 111 dismissals would be issued by July 20 and that 157 employees would be dismissed by the end of the year.

Sir Eric Harrison said then that he had directed that employees should be laid off in the order of women first, then New Australians, then single Australian men.

"The immediate retrenchment will be confined to 41 females who began work at the factory after March, 1955, and, at the time of their engagement, were advised that their employment was temporary and for a short term only," Sir Eric said.

"Orders of discharge of employees on wages in the various Government departments have not been uniform and have led to conflicting practices."

"Should it be necessary later to retrench at Lithgow or any other Government manufacturing establishment department or agency, there will be no discrimination between New Australians and Australian-born."

"The order of discharge will be last on first off, having regard to whether such persons are married or single. This henceforth will be uniform Government practice."

Union officials in Lithgow tonight expressed satisfaction at the Minister's announcement.

But between courses the women are far from happy.

There came a staggering surprise.

What is the real story behind this change, a change that has caused anger and distrust throughout Australia? As one cynic sees it, "Is this the pay off for services rendered?"

VOTERS SWING

For some time now, there has been a definite swing from Labour to Liberalism by Roman Catholic voters. This drift has been evident in recent elections and referendums.

A surprising feature of the whole affair was that the decision was made months ago. It was kept secret by Cabinet Ministers. Government backbenchers knew nothing of the matter, but of course that is nothing new.

Prime Minister Menzies was behind the proposal, but left for his overseas visit before it was introduced. Some of his Scotch followers are likely to ask him some pertinent questions when he returns.

NEXT MISTAKE

Then the next mistake was the decision of the Federal Government to pay churches in Canberra the interest they incur in building denominational schools. This offer and up to five percent on building loans to a maximum of £500,000 would cost the Commonwealth £25,000.

The Protestant church leaders, asked for time to consider the matter, and then turned it down.

But the Roman Catholic Bishop immediately accepted and touched off a storm of protests, for it was apparent that as the Roman Catholics had the great number of private schools, they would secure the greatest benefits.

In the past, the Roman Catholic leaders in Australia have persistently tried to have their schools subsidised by governments, but have been regularly repulsed.

Even the Labour Party which years ago had strong backing from them, would not grant them aid. That a Liberal Government should bow the Menzies himself is a very devout politician, and he has wooed the Roman Catholics openly.

There was the omission of Defender of the Faith from the Australian birth, certainly it was rectified but only after a strong protest.

Then the delicate service of the colours for the forces has been changed.

HIS BEST OFFER

But his latest offer is the finest he has given to his newly found allies.

There, however, may be a constitutional bar to the whole matter. The Professor of Law at the Australian National University, Professor G. Sawyer, considers that any Federal financial aid to Church schools might be unconstitutional.

He said Section 116 of the Constitution said that "the Commonwealth shall not make any law for establishing any religion."

This section had been copied from the U.S. Constitution and it had been interpreted there as prohibiting direct grants from the Government to Church schools.

A prominent Government backbencher, Professor F. A. Bland, urged the Federal Government to drop its offer until the rank and file of the Government parties have discussed the matter.

He said, "Everyone is aware of the highly controversial character of all proposals for State aid to denominational schools."

"This matter is not merely one for executive or administrative decision which he considered not in the least interest or against the constitution of the Commonwealth."

VERY ANGRY

The Acting Prime Minister and Treasurer Sir Arthur Fadden, is angry, very angry at Federal Departments seeking authority to spend millions more in 1956-57 than in the financial year just ended.

The demands run counter to the government's policy of pruning expenditures.

Estimates for most departmental expenditure in last year's Budget were already in excess of the previous year's figures.

WATER STORAGE

The Colony's reservoirs lost nine million gallons of water in the 24-hour period ending at 8 o'clock this morning, when the total storage was 2,600 million gallons.

Consumption yesterday amounted to 36 million gallons and the yield from streams and catchwaters was 27 million gallons. No rainfall was registered by the Water Authority.

Graduation Day

Tung Wah Primary Schools

Hundreds of cheerful pupils and their parents attended the joint graduation ceremony of the Tung Wah Hospitals Primary Schools at King's Theatre this morning.

At present there are 3,602 pupils in six free schools under the sponsorship of the Tung Wah; and the number is expected to increase to 5,000 when the well-equipped Shaikwan School is completed in September. It was revealed at the ceremony.

A total of 170 pupils graduated from Primary VI and 302 graduated from Primary IV. They received their certificates from Mrs. Hawkins, wife of the Hon. B. C. K. Hawkins, Secretary for Chinese Affairs. Prizes were also distributed by Mrs. Hawkins to other successful scholars.

IMPRESSED

The Hon. B. C. K. Hawkins said he was very much impressed by the drill and gymnastic display which he saw on their annual sports day. He congratulated both pupils and teachers on the excellent way they were making of their opportunities.

He also mentioned that the schools had produced very good examination results all round and particularly among those graduating from Primary VI; 179 passes and only ten failures was a very good record and set a fine example to those who come after.

Mr. P. T. Loong, the Chairman, declared that the "current Board of Directors are dedicated to the welfare of the community, especially in their team of education."

NEW SCHOOLS PLAN

He said: "Our Board has further applied to the Education Department for Government grant for a site for another new building in the Wanhsai district to house our existing Nos 3 and 4 schools which will be merged, and leave a vacant site ready in hand. A drive will soon be launched to raise the necessary building fund and we are confident that we shall have the sympathy and support of the community for this charitable venture to help crown it with success."

Young Miss Chang Ho-yee of Kowloon Primary (P.M.) School of Tung Wah representing the graduates, made a short speech of thanks both in English and Chinese.
